

Wording your invitations

By this time, you should have everything booked including the venue, mass, catering, and DJ. The information on your quinceanera invitations typically includes mass, reception, dinner, and dance times and addresses along with the names of your padrinas and padrinos. Don't forget to include your contact information for your guests to RSVP. Need help wording your invitations?

2 Months: Mail Invitations

You don't want to mail your invitations too far in advance because you don't want your guests to forget about your event but you don't want to mail them out too last minute because they might already have plans. That's why 2 months is a good time frame to mail them out to increase the attendance rate.

1 Month: Confirm RSVPs

You will most likely have to give the venue and caterer a final count at least a month in advance. A good way to know how many people will be going to your quinceanera with certainty is by simply asking those who haven't confirmed their attendance.
